Two of the eight Italian space scientists who are responsible for their country's second orbital launch this fall checked out their instrument package Thursday at Grand Prairie. The satellite is a part of the cooperative San Marco project. Left to right are Dr. G. Manarini, chief of electronics; Dr. G. Barresi, head of the payload work, and Milt Green, Scout program director for Ling-Temco-Vought Astronautics, builder of the solid fuel rocket.—Staff Photo.